Mário Dinis-Ribeiro was born in 1973, graduated in Medicine in 1996, earned his Doctorate Degree in 2005 and Agregação in 2009 from the Faculty of Medicine of the University of Porto (FMUP). He is, since 2020, Senior Consultant and between 2014-2023, Head of the Gastroenterology Unit and since 2023 Head of the Department of Medicine of the Portuguese Oncology Institute of Porto (IPO Porto) / Porto Comprehensive Cancer Center (Porto.CCC). Being Guest Full Professor at FMUP since 2014, he developed 2 different research groups previously and he is a Group Leader (with 10 other PhDs) and Sub-Director at IPO Research Centre (CI-IPO) and Thematic Line at RISE (Health Research Network). He is a member of the Scientific Committee of the PhD programme in Clinical and Health Services Research at FMUP and his research interests focus on improving early diagnosis and noninvasive management of gastrointestinal tumors, leading several inter-institutional national and international projects with over 400 scientific articles published (HI=63). Since 2022, he is also a Member of the Portugal Cancer Policy Group, National Cancer Hub and member of European Commission Initiative on Colorectal Cancer (ECICC). He has been honored as Honorary Member of ESGE (after his Presidency between 2019 and 2021) and Fellow of the Japanese Society of Gastrointestinal Endoscopy. He was Co-Editor-in-Chief of the journal Endoscopy between 2013 and 2025. He won the BIAL Award in Clinical Medicine in 2018 and honored as Rotary's Paul Harris' Fellow in 2020.