

Anneli Uusküla MD, MS, PhD

WG Member

Anneli Uusküla is a Professor of Epidemiology at the University of Tartu, Estonia. She holds an MD in dermatovenerology and a PhD from the University of Tartu, and an MS in Epidemiology (2003) from the State University of New York.

She is recognized for her expertise in leveraging large-scale electronic health records for epidemiologic and quality improvement research and has a strong background in electronic health data and a track record of international collaboration.

Dr. Uusküla leads a research group specializing in infectious diseases epidemiology and is actively involved in studies on cervical screening technology and HPV self-sampling.

Beyond her academic responsibilities, Dr. Uusküla is a practicing dermatologist and actively contributes to several Estonian councils, including the Council of Treatment Quality Indicators, the Cancer Screening Council, and the Clinical and Guidelines Council.